

Saturday

My dear Father,

When writing you last week I forgot to tell you that when the Kaiser heard of Edward Corbould's death ~~was~~ he wrote to Count Muthernich of the German Embassy in London —
"Have just read in the newspapers that the famous aquaralist Mr Edward Henry Corbould is dead. He was a friend and teacher of my dear mother. She possessed two of his most famous drawings among which I grew up and which still adorn my apartments — 'The Entry of the Boy King' and 'The Democlasts of Bali'. Represent me at the funeral, or if too late deposit for me a wreath on the grave. My mother often spoke of him in terms of highest admiration to us children. I had no idea that he was still alive. — Wilhelm I.R."

But love to you as my mother
Yours affectionately
E. H. Corbould.
