SECTION X.

CORBOULD OF NITON

FREDERICK CORBOULD (see Section IX) of Blenheim House, Ventnor, and of Niton, Isle of Wight, brewer, wine shipper and merchant, b. 28 Aug. 1834, bapt. 21 Sep. 1834 by the Rev. —. Meeking at Speenhamland Church. Educated at Woodspen House School, Newbury, during the headmastership of his father. Churchwarden at St. Catherine's, Ventnor. Died 8 May 1892. Bur. at Niton. Will proved in London on 20 July 1892.

He married 1st, 23 Dec. 1857, MARIA (b. 18 Feb. 1835, d. 27 March 1882, bur. at Niton), dau. of William WINTERBOURNE of the City of Oxford (by his wife Maria Robertson), whose family held lands at Aston in the parish of Bampton, Oxfordshire, and is traditionally said to have derived its name from the village of Winterbourne, Berks.

Assisted by her nine surviving children, Mrs. Corbould made by hand the embroidered carpet in the chancel of Godshell Church, Isle of Wight.

He married 2ndly, by licence, at St. Catherine's Church, Ventnor, 16 Aug. 1886, JANE ELIZABETH, b. 1859, who d. 25 May 1889 aged 30, and was bur. at Ventnor, dau. of John LINTON. They had one child who died in infancy.

2. JAMES CORBOULD, of Woolecote Lodge, Ventnor, Isle of Wight, b. at Blenheim House, Ventnor 20 April 1861; educ. at Woodspeen House, Newbury, during the headmastership of his grandfather and of his uncle. In 1876 he commenced a voyage round the world in the "Plassy," and as third in command helped to bring the ship safely through the great Bermuda hurricane of 1879. On this voyage scurvy broke out, and the "Plassy" was so much damaged by terrific seas that it took six months and a half to complete the return voyage compared with the normal sailing period of 21 days. He saw the "Atalanta" capsized in the hurricane and she was never spoken again. By an odd chance the wreck of her sister ship H.M.S. Eurydice off the Isle of Wight in 1878 was witnessed by Miss Elizabeth Holbrook who afterwards became his wife.

In 1892 he succeeded to his father's business; later this was sold outright to Long & Co., Ltd., of Portsmouth. Mr. Corbould is a member of the Yarborough Masonic Lodge No. 551, and was for 28 years Hon. Sec. of Ventnor Sailing Club. On coming ashore he became an enthusiastic infantry volunteer and in one year won £65 worth of prizes for rifle shooting.

Churchwarden at St. Catherine's, Ventnor, where he was married on 16 October 1882 to ELIZABETH, b. at Oberon House, Ventnor, 27 May 1860, third and youngest dau. of Joseph HOLBROOK of Oberon House, Ventnor, and Wellow, in the parish of Shalfleet, Isle of Wight, who was born at Calbourne, and died at Ventnor, bur. there, a descendant of the naval family of Holbrook of Newtown, which was settled at Calbourne in the 16th century.

Mr. Holbrook married, at Newchurch, Anne, b. 28 May 1828, d. at Ventnor 11 April 1896, bur. there, eldest dau. of Jacob Fowler of Berelay, Niton (b. 1795, d. at Berelay 1 Dec. 1879 in his 85th year, bur. at Niton), by his wife Jane (b. and bapt. at Niton in 1791, d. at Berelay 20 Jan. 1880 in her 89th year, bur. at Niton), elder dau. of Thomas Whitewood of Niton by Jane Arthur his wife.

The Whitewood family, which is recorded in Niton registers for 200 years, resided at Rookley in the parish of Godshill in the 17th century, and the Arthurs were at Niton as early as 1632.

Both through the families of Holbrook and Whitewood, Mrs. Corbould is connected with that of Urry, resident at Thorley since the 16th century.

Mrs. Joseph Holbrook's sister, Mary, is now in her 98th year.
